

Plants

Some plants need daylight to grow. They delight in bright light. They grow big and strong. Even if they like bright light, it is okay for them to be in the dark at night. Other plants may not need as much light. The right spot for them might have some shade. If you have a plant that likes light, you can shine a flashlight on it. If you have a plant that likes shade, you can cover it with a cloth. Every plant knows what it needs. It will fight to grow strong. Healthy plants are a wonderful sight.
